“ Joyce was always a sweet, caring and wonderful friend. One of our favorite places to visit is New Harmony, IN. Joyce loved visiting the farmers market on Saturday morning, walking through the streets to look at the homes with all their beautiful plants and flowers, and browsing the shops talking to residents about the histories of the town. Over lunch we would talk about the people we had met and their shops and then our last visit before leaving for home would be to enjoy a scoop of homemade ice cream. I think ice cream was her favorite thing in the world. My fondest memories are the conversations we enjoyed over many cups of coffee on the back porch watching the birds and the world go by. I miss you my dear friend. You have a special place in my heart.
