“ Marsha, I just saw the obituary of your Mom's passing. (I am in Florida and just now got the news). I am so sorry that you have lost your mom. There is nothing that can ever replace that empty place in your heart that she held. But, knowing from the experience of having lost my Mom years ago, she will always be around you and sometimes will visit you very vividly. You are very lucky to have have her all of these years. I hope you find peace in the knowledge that she will be well taken care of by the good Lord. All the best to you. Tom Buck

Tom~ Thank you so much for the kind words,it means so much to me coming from you. I miss her so much as I was her caregiver since 2011 after she had a stroke. Please keep me in your prayers as I am having a hard time adjusting to her loss. It helps my heart hearing from life time friends like you. Thanks again and God Bless you!!Your long time friend,Marsha

Marsha, I just saw your beautiful note to me. I did not know that you had cared for your Mom since 2011. Giving that kind of care to an elderly loved one is so draining, physically, emotionally, and .mentally. I hope that you are at peace and in good health from giving so much of yourself for those years. She will always be with you- sometimes when a favorite song of hers comes on, or a favorite Bible verse is read as part of a service, or sometimes when she just wants to let you know that she loves you and is with you. But just have faith that these waves of sorrow will lose some of their intensity and your new relationship with her being in a different realm will become a good part of your life. My Mom was our Sunday school teacher from about 7th grade through high school. At the close of class each week, she would have us stand and hold hands -yes, all these 14 year old boys holding hands- and recite "may the Lord watch between me and thee, while we are absent, one from another." I did not know until very recently when that prayer popped up in a Bible study I was involved in that that is from the book of Genesis. But it was such a nice message to get from Mom. I know that your Mom will come to see you and send you messages from time to time. But just know that she will always be with you. I have nothing but the best memories and my at fond thoughts for you. God bless you, Marsha, my dear friend. Tom

Marsha, I was just thinking about you and wanted to know that I am sending a prayer up for your peace and comfort in this process. I hope the waves of sorrow are getting less violent and are allowing you to fill yourself with the memories of the love your mom gave to you, the joy she shared with those are her, all that she gave to this world, and how much she loves you. The Good Lord is taking good care of her and is watching over you and taking care of you. Best to you, Marsha. Your old, old friend, Tom
