“ This was my Mamaw. I haven't seen her since I was 10 or younger. I remember every Easter she would give us kids Peeps marshmallows. She also made homemade dolls and dollies. I remember visiting her at Cross Creek and get taking in our dog Cocoa when we couldn't care for him any longer. A few years ago we got to catch up through the mail. I moved and lost her contact. Today I was thinking about her. RIP Mamaw. I would love to know about her family and where she grew up. I would love to know if she had any other siblings or cousins. Pictures in her younger years would be fun to look at also. You can find me on Facebook Chenell NellNell Rigney.

Could someone tell me where she will be buried and her marker number so I can visit? Thanks!

“ A couple memories ill never forget..

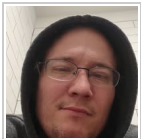

When I was real young probably around 7 or 8, we went to visit grandma at her apartment. I remember walking through the front door and falling in love with the tiny space she had covered in nothing but old fashion patterns, crosses and scriptures. The happiness and wholesome environment always made me feel safe. There is two items from grandma that always stuck with me. She gave me a half stuffed animal, half glass sculpture. So to better help you visualize, it had glass head, arms and legs, but the body was stuffed with cotton. She knew my love for cats and im pretty sure she made that homemade, I absolutely loved it. Skip ahead about 15 years: I was engaged and trying to figure out how grandma could be apart of the big day. So one day I received an envelope in the mail from grandma. She sent me a birthday card and also made me a bracelet with pearls. Which is the reason why my wedding had so many pearls involved in it. I wanted her to be a part of my wedding, my bracelet was considered my something new. She truly was the best role model in faith and truth. Id do anything to listen to her tell me again about the love she has for God. She is truly in paradise now and probably loving it.

Hi Jessica. She probably did make that doll for you. She was so crafty. I miss talking with you.

“ My fondest memory of grandma rigney is that she loved everyone equally. She got me into church as a child and I think that's why I'm so fond of church now. She was an amazing woman and she will be missed
