“Becka and I loved Pinky and The Brain, and often quoted it to each other. This song in particular was one that we would sing to each other if we hadn't hung out in a while. I miss you, Becka. I will always love you and carry you with me in the many memories we share together.

*I'm Pinky
All alone and it's stinky
On my own I'm so dinky
Since I've lost my best friend
We were lab mice who thought we could take over the world
But without Brain
I'm really sad
Narf, poit, egad!
I sure feel bad
Since I'm all on my own!
People listen
While the rooftops glisten
And Santa rides through the snow!
Ooh, poit! Sorry, wrong song.
Ah, yes...
Wandering
All alone, I am wandering
When I'd rather be pondering
'Bout a duck and a hose
How I miss when you'd use all of those really big words
Then you'd grab me by the nose!*

“Wow, what an incredible loss. But this is because Rebecca was an incredible person! I had the privilege of knowing Rebecca for a short window, as I was the youth director of a church in which she attended our AWANA and youth group. She had her own church service to attend to, elsewhere. But she still came to our outings, helped in our fundraisers, enjoyed our camp outs, and acted in our plays. While being a good example for her younger peers, she was never any trouble ~ but up for a good prank. We were always glad to have her around. I am praying for comfort for those that knew her as we struggle with her not being around anymore. But looking forward to meeting up with her again in the future!

“One of my favorite memories of Rebecca was when she was in my wedding in 1989. She was so happy to wear a fancy dress and a crown in her hair. She was definitely the hit of the ceremony. Rebecca you will be missed. I love you all very much, please know that I am here for you in any way you need.

“ *I think Rebecca was truly one of the most talented actress's I have ever seen, I believe that she could have made it big if she had gone after it with her while being. I saw her do a brief portrayal of someone from Fiddler On the Roof. It was at a high school talent show fundraiser. I enjoyed the other skits and performances, but when Rebecca got up and started her part, the rest of the people in the building disappeared and it was like I was in Russia; actually seeing an elderly grandma who was worried about family. It blew me away.
She will be greatly missed.*
