“ My father was a man of conviction, intense pride, and deeply connected to his family. He could liven up any get together and really knew how to work a room. True to his engineering roots, he was a fiscal hawk and put every analysis you can possibly think of on a spreadsheet. If you differed to his opinion, you had better bring your facts to back it up. He loved his Mom, Wife, basketball, politics, staying fit, good libations, and giving those he loved a job to make things interesting. In his later years, he became more self-deprecating about some of his life choices. I am fortunate to call him Dad. In the past several years, we grew much closer though the political optics of this country. We did not always agree, but both loved the inspired debate about moving this country forward. In my workplace dealings, I often sign off by saying...Never Stop, Never Settle. There is very little question where this passion came from. Thanks for inspiring so many you touched in life. I love you Dad. See you in heaven.
