“ Susie, thank you for being my friend, my very best friend. Thank you for showing me what love was meant to be. Your honest, truthful, caring approach to life poured over into our relationship, it is what made me fall so much in love with you, well that and your beautiful smile. You taught me that there are still people out there who you can depend on to be there. Ones who won't cheat, lie or steal. We became best friends when we both needed one, we were non-judgemental of each other, only honest even if it hurt. Yes I struggle with your loss, we all do, time will make it easier but I don't think it will ever totally heal the big hole left in my heart. I hope you go into the other world knowing how much I really loved you, goodbye baby, love and kisses forever##imported-begin##Alan Turner##imported-end##

“ Dear Susie, I paid my final respects to you today. I met your family, saw Derrick, a handsome, polite grown young man. Of course. he is yours! No more suffering, or pain. You gave so much to those entrusted in your care. We worked along side each other, laughed and cried together. Thank you.
May God grant you eternal rest, and perpetual light shine upon your soul.##imported-begin##Judy Brown##imported-end##

“ To the family of Susie Nurrenbern: Roger and I would like to extend our deepest, heartfelt sympathy to the Bittner/Nurrenbern families.

To Derek, Mike and Connie, Rick and Nelldean, there are no words that will make the loss of your mother and sister any easier. We know that she endured a lot of grief and pain in the last few years, but the joy comes with knowing that she just changed real estate on Friday. Susie left one address and woke up in heaven where Danny and Ralph and Agnes, and her beloved father met her with the warmth of heaven on their faces. There will be a time of missing her here....and then that wonderful reunion when we ALL reach that place and live there forever!
