Taylor will always be in the sunshine when it hits your face, the wind when it whispers, he will always be here with you.

Chris Garrison - November 11, 2014 at 11:00 PM

The death of a young promising person like Taylor is always heart breaking. May the Lord receive his soul in perfect peace. May He grant his loved ones the Grace to bear this deep loss so that they will not mourn like those without hope, knowing that our hope is in God who knows why He called Taylor home at this tender age.

“ Taylor was such an amazing guy. There isn't a moment that I thought he would ever let me, or anyone else, be in danger. He always knew how to make us laugh at ourselves and there wasn't a moment that he didn't have a smile on his face.

“ I'm so sorry for this loss. Taylor was not only an amazing person, but a fantastic friend. He walked with me out to our cars every day when he was going to tech and I was going to Bio III. He sat next to me every day freshman year during youth group. I can still hear him yelling my nickname at me from the other end of the hallway. Seeing him was always a high point in my day. I miss him dearly, and he will always be on my mind. Times like these are never easy, but know that Taylor will always be in my heart and in my prayers.

“ I remember the first time Taylor and I had hung out. We spent 2 hours just talking as we laid out watching the sunset. He was always able to make me laugh and keep a smile on my face. Taylor was such an amazing person who's life ended too soon. I'll miss you Taylor, see you up in Heaven one day.
